Bond Joins Department of Workforce Development

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. – Today, Indiana Department of Workforce Development welcomed another new team member.

Commissioner Alan Degner announced that Jonathan Bond has been appointed Deputy Commissioner for Policy, Planning and Evaluation. In his new role Bond will oversee the department's federal Workforce Investment Act funding, program evaluation efforts, policy development and interaction with federal agencies and the state's Workforce Investment Boards.

"Throughout his career Jon has proven himself to be a capable and competent leader, and we are thrilled to have him join our team," said Degner. "With his past experience in dealing with various levels of government and economic development, Jon was a natural fit for us."

Bond joins the department after serving as the Director of Operations for the Indiana Economic Development Corp., Inc., a position he held since July of 1998. Prior to that, he worked as a program coordinator for the Indiana Department of Environmental Management. Bond is a graduate of Hanover College and earned his law degree from Indiana University in 2001.
